

Jean Esteve

The Wind

Why does the wind
sigh and whimper through the dune grass
these November evenings
when all she has of hindrance bends before her as before a queen.

"Ah, me, freedom, freedom," she keens.

Jean G. Esteve has published poems in The Iowa Review, Tampa Review, and Pleiades. She lives on the Oregon coast.